Arizona's Fight, America's Fight is a compilation of two essays written by Victor Davis Hanson and Ralph Peters designed to give context and background to Arizona's brave decision to pass SB 1070 into law. In Davis Hanson's piece, "Why the Arizona Law – And Why Now?", he discusses the chaos that uncontrolled illegal immigration is causing in our social system and the subculture of divided loyalty it has created that threatens American identity. Peters discusses the relationship between illegal immigration and the national security threat of the narco-terror zone on our borders in his piece, "Arizona's Neighbor: From Narco-insurgency to Narco-state?". Both essays are essential for understanding the background and context to Arizona's decision, which will be looked back upon as a major turning point in the battle with illegal immigration.
