Freedom and a meaningful life away from the violence of the Trassato Crime Family is all I ever wanted... But what I want doesn't matter now that I'm caught in a tug of war between two men in the dangerous world of organized crime. Marcello Masciantonio is the man my father expects me to marry. He wants me because I'm the daughter of Dominick Trassato, New York's most powerful crime boss. He says he's my future, and I want to hate him, but I can't deny the spark that burns between us. Salvatore D'Amico is perfect. He supports me. He understands me. He's willing to betray my father and give up his family to have me. He doesn't care about the power that comes with being part of my family. He wants me for me. My choice is simple, right? Wrong. Everyone has an agenda, including Salvatore and Marcello, and just when I think I have everything figured out, I realize I don't know a damn thing. Truths are lies. Freedom is lonely. But worst of all... My love triangle is actually a hate triangle.
