Tenney and his co-author, Amie Dockery, are both pastors' kids and parents. Their experiences and the ones they have learned form the heart of this wonderful book on the importance of leaving -- and receiving -- a spiritual legacy, from one generation to the next. As Tommy explains, when we are young, we first learn to dance by standing on daddy's shoes. But as we grow and mature, we stand on our parents' shoulders, building our lives on the foundation of their teaching. God the Father has also given us a legacy, and we are to provide a legacy to our children and to the next generation of men and women who will lead the Church in the new millennium.
