This calamitous love story with many twists and turns between an innocent, educated Indian girl, Monika and an intelligent smart boy Raj during early sixties. Love, especially between different castes, was not socially accepted, but the author took this impromptu love into much deeper end through the social belief and religious influence, making them to escape from the East to the West of this world facing profound adversity when during their path of journey, they met several characters like Bruce, Paul, Anita, Luby, Linda, Sheila, Charles and Amit and others - while some helped and others tried to reverse their path, but did they succeed to fulfill their desire or both were drowned from the impact of their actions and more so from circumstances just to prove that to fulfill heavenly love in this world, many thorns of pain and suffering they have to bear! Would they ever be able to achieve their goal? You have to cry and enjoy, be emotionally involved with them by reading this entire book where the writer took the reader through the journey to feel, to know and to realize that the different cultures, ethnicity, immigrant's joy, pain, fun, scariness and sufferings from the experience of unknown around fifty years ago when there was a scarcity of educated professional women in America to take and feel the impact. Even then is it the end of their love? You have to read and wait to know the end.
