Some might consider him a bit of a beast. Others knew him to be particular and demanding. The Marquess of Penrith didn't really care. After returning from war. All he wanted was peace and quiet. But, duty and honor demanded that he marry the young Miss Davis. An obligation that could not be denied. Luckily, marriage did not equate to love. Miss Catherine Davis dreaded the thought of marrying such a man. But what choice did she have. Penni, without family. Her options were limited. The fact that he was extremely handsome, powerful, and rich, only made things worse. Two people from different worlds, forced together, both searching for happiness. Perhaps they can only find it by coming together.
