If your life is dull, why not get a new one?

When I met her, my blood boiled. She was gorgeous, clever, rich and charismatic. She was everything I had never been and always wanted to be. I thus took over all she had: her appearance, her job, her bank account, her house, her car and even her fiancé. I buried both her body and my old life inside the same coffin and today I do not regret a thing. I am done with New York's dodgy neighbourhoods, I am done with bailiffs knocking at my door, I am over and done with cellulite and failing love relationships. Today, I am her and everything is going brilliantly.
