It's your first trip to San Francisco and you're there with George, your uncle's business partner. He doesn't have much time to show you the sights, so you've been exploring the city on your own. Suddenly, on your way up to your hotel room, you are kidnapped and taken to the apartment of a government agent. He claims to know George and asks for your help. There's something sinister about this man. Should you trust him?
