Long ago: Hailed as heroes, killed as criminals, an extraordinary band of outlaws met their end in Sherwood Forest – all except the four who were supernaturally saved, and the one who did not exist. ...Not yet. Now: With Avalon Faire's living legends finally free to move between the realms of magic and modernity, there's no dream too fantastic to reach – including that kept alive by a secret society, awaiting only the right time, and the right minstrel, to rewrite history. Just when the future seems brightest, the Merry Men find themselves thrust into the past, facing a second chance at the lives they might have lived ... or the death they might not have the luck to cheat twice. For the otherworldly Allyn-a-Dale, it's all in a day's destiny. For an already struggling Will Scarlet, it's a nightmare that may prove black enough to break him. And for the whole of the band, it's anyone's guess whether courage, cunning, and camaraderie can win out against their most infamous enemies: The Sheriff of Nottingham, Sir Guy of Gisborne, and – for once in eternity – Time.
