*Closure is necessary in order to move forward in relationships. This cleverly crafted tale by first time author Aaron L. Ashford delves into the lives of best friends Kevin Wade and Jason Adams. Kevin is married with two children and an uncertain career, while Jason is enjoying the single life with no plans whatsoever to commit to anyone. It would seem that he is a bit of a hypocrite given his status as a marriage therapist; but there is a reason for everything. Kevin is committed more than ever to keep his family together and to remain faithful, but all of that comes into question when he is blindsided by a stranger's assertion of his wife's infidelity. What seems like your typical summer in Columbia, SC is about to become the hottest summer on record. Kevin and Jason are forced to examine everything they thought they knew about women and relationships in order to find their closure.
